JenCare Senior Medical Center
A CHENMED COMPANY

David Keeton
8655 S. 87th Ave
Justice, IL 60458
08/26/1962

February 6, 2026

I am Dr. Rahming, the treating physician for David Keeton, and I am requesting medical accommodation for a third bedroom based on his significant medical and functional limitations. Mr. Keeton has valvular heart disease status post aortic valve replacement, hypotension, seizures, schizophrenia, progressive cognitive decline, and frequent unpredictable falls that severely impair his ability to safely care for himself.

He requires 24-hour supervision and assistance with medication management, mobility, personal care, communication, and daily tasks. A live-in caregiver, Amy McCallister, provides essential around-the-clock support that prevents injury, hospitalization, and serious safety risks related to falls, medication mismanagement, and impaired judgment.

A third bedroom is medically necessary to provide a dedicated private space for the live-in caregiver so she can rest and maintain the capacity to deliver safe, continuous care. Without a separate room, caregiver fatigue and environmental safety risks increase significantly, directly compromising Mr. Keeton's health and his ability to remain safely housed in the community rather than requiring institutional placement. It is my professional medical opinion that this accommodation is essential for his safety, stability, and continued independent living.

Cordially,

Harold L. Rahming, MD

Dr. Harold Rahming

Harold L. Rahming, MD, MHS
Center Clinical Director
Jencare Senior Medical Center, Oaklawn
harold.rahming@jencaremed.com

JenCare Senior Medical Center
A CHENMED COMPANY

David Keeton
8655 S. 87th Ave
Justice, IL 60458
08/26/1962

February 6, 2026

I am Dr. Rahming, the treating physician for David Keeton, and I am requesting medical accommodation for a third bedroom based on his significant medical and functional limitations. Mr. Keeton has valvular heart disease status post aortic valve replacement, hypotension, seizures, schizophrenia, progressive cognitive decline, and frequent unpredictable falls that severely impair his ability to safely care for himself.

He requires 24-hour supervision and assistance with medication management, mobility, personal care, communication, and daily tasks. A live-in caregiver, Amy McCallister, provides essential around-the-clock support that prevents injury, hospitalization, and serious safety risks related to falls, medication mismanagement, and impaired judgment.

A third bedroom is medically necessary to provide a dedicated private space for the live-in caregiver so she can rest and maintain the capacity to deliver safe, continuous care. Without a separate room, caregiver fatigue and environmental safety risks increase significantly, directly compromising Mr. Keeton's health and his ability to remain safely housed in the community rather than requiring institutional placement. It is my professional medical opinion that this accommodation is essential for his safety, stability, and continued independent living.

Cordially,

Dr. Harold Rahming

Harold L. Rahming, MD, MHS
Center Clinical Director
Jencare Senior Medical Center, Oaklawn
harold.rahming@jencaremed.com